Oil Well Drilling Takes Plenty Of Capital and Equipment

The Superior Oils of California well called the Superior Robertson No. 1 was started in operation last Wednesday on the Jack Robertson farm about nine miles west and three miles south of Didsbury, is now drilling steadily and it is understood that the well will be a deep structure test, going down to between 12,000 and 13,000 feet before reaching bottom and will be suspended. Regardless of whether oil is encountered at a higher level or not, this test is to be made of structure on the first current drilling operation in the fifth meridian.

The above information was given out by company officials last Wednesday at the well site.

Further information on the rig at Superior Robertson No. 1 indicates that it takes real money and plenty of equipment when prospecting for oil. The equipment at the well southwesterly of Didsbury is valued somewhere in the neighborhood of $250,000 and preparations are made at the outset to bring the well into production. That is the reason for the large storage pit alongside the derrick. This pit is approximately 100x200 feet and about 15 feet deep, and as the well is being drilled the sludge from the hole will go into this pit. As the well proceeds to depth and shoud it suddenly spout oil, which is possible despite every precaution taken, this oil can be collected in the pit and then preventing oil from saturating the surrounding area and rendering it unfit for agriculture or unsafe for further drilling.

The cellar at the foot of the derrick is 6 feet square and four feet high. At the top of this is the substructure which is 12 feet, and then the derrick which is 135 feet high, making the top of the derrick 149 feet from ground level.

The well itself was started as a 12½ inch hole and this will taper off with the progress being completed with a 9 7/8 inch hole at the bottom. The formation is for about 12 hours depending on structure, after which the well is down to around 3,000 feet and then begins 3 hours to change the drilling bits.

The large block on which the cables run weighs approximately 3½ tons, and steel cables used are 1¼ inches in diameter. Six of these cables are used in drilling to a depth of 7,000 feet, and then eight cables are used. The reason for these

Shaw and Hammell Address Soc. Creditors

An interesting meeting was held at the home of Peter Liesemer on Thursday evening, January 11. F. D. Shaw, M.P.A. and Howard Hammell, M.L.A. were both present and each gave their views on the growing of the surrounding area and rendering it unfit for agriculture or unsafe for further drilling.

HOWARD HALLIDAY CELEBRATES 20TH BUSINESS ANNIVERSARY

Howard Halliday celebrates his 20th year in the grocery business this Saturday evening, January 19, 1951, and to mark the event he is holding a 20th anniversary special during the week from January 16th to 26th.

Mr. Halliday started in the grocery store business in the A. G. Studer store building, now owned by McCullough's Clothing, on January 19, 1931, and operated in that location for six years before he moved to the present store building.

Mr. Shaw dealt with the Korean situation and also gave some facts regarding the Korean situation and dealt with the progress made in the Social Credit field. Mr. Shaw stated that much work is yet to be done in a large field and funds were limited. He appealed for patience and persistent effort and felt confident that the time will come when the Social Credit will be successful.

Mr. Hammell drew comparisons of the allotment made by the Provincial Government to the respective departments since it first took office, which in some instances is tripled and quadrupled. He also referred to the question of automation and the need for automation, the opinion that this matter will receive attention in the next session.

In reference to the oil and gas situation Mr. Hammell drew attention to the necessity of careful administration and be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise. There too, he said, the time has come for the Provincial debt.

Both Mr. Shaw and Mr. Hammell extended a wide open invitation to the public to send in their correspondence at any time and promised to reply to the best of their ability.

Red Cross Crippled Children's Hospital

Drilling For Oil Is An Expensive Business

A dream in brick and concrete, tile and glass will come true March 3 when the new Alberta Red Cross Crippled Children's hospital in Calgary formally opens its doors to Alberta's crippled children.

For 12 years, even since the present basement and do small 'dozing jobs.

BURR TUGGLE
Phone 91, Didsbury

We are now equipped to dig

the new red brick building

standing on the highest hilltop in

Calgary is the result of their work

and interest, for they have given nearly one million dollars to its construction.

In modern style, and employing

all the modern tricks of capturing

the most air and sunlight, the new four-floor hospital is shaped like an enormous castle with wide-spread

and towering wings.

It is built on land donated tax

free by the City of Calgary, which has been the home of Red Cross

work for crippled children since 1922. This spring the grounds will be landscaped and seeded to give

the children even more beautiful surroundings.

The new hospital will officially accommodate 119 patients, with room for 20 more in emergency.

Medical treatment is given for club

feet, tubercular bone conditions,

congenital dislocation of the hip,

maimed fractures and contractions

following burns, sarcoma, coeliac disease, spinal curvatures,

spastic hemiplegia and spinal bifidus.

Children from all over Alberta, the Northwest Territories and Peace

River Block, whose parents cannot afford prolonged orthopaedic care

are welcomed to the hospital. For those who do not need hospitalization, there is the Out-Patient Clinic

where parents are instructed to care for the child, and where needed braces and splints are fitted.

More than 7,000 children have been treated so far at the hospital.

Very ample space has been provided for the equipment and decoration of the hospital. Pastel walls and acoustic tile ceilings take the place of the old-time "hospital white."

The wards are furnished for the convenience and comfort of both patients and nurses; the stairways are equipped for comfortable study; the handicraft room

and the gymnasium are based on functional design.

From the modern kitchens on the ground floor to the sterile and comfortable dispensary operating room

on the second floor and the open

solarium on the roof, the new Alberta Red Cross Crippled Children's hospital is indeed a "dream" hospital.

Visitors who wish to tour the new structure are welcome at all times

to set their mind to make the "lame

to walk" among Alberta's children.

Should the oil be discovered at any time, the derrick will be moved to the 12,000 foot level as a reserve test, as mentioned above.

However, this production will not be lost. Equipment is available to perform the casing at any given depth

to allow production from whatever formation it comes from.

WILL NOT CLOSE COUNTRY SCHOOLS

The day of the big vote on the by-law to provide $330,000 to build new schools at Carsairs and Didsbury is drawing nearer, and on Wednesday, January 31, ratepayers will cast their ballot for or against the project.

Too many view the question purely as a matter of additional taxes, and while it is admitted that on the highest assessed land in the municipality there will be an increase of 1.79 mills, the general increase will be considerably less.

At the present time the Department of Education has agreed to contribute $41,250 in grants, and lend the Division another $41,250 interest free for ten years if the schools are built immediately. This money may not be forthcoming at a later date, should the by-law be turned down, but the need for the schools will still exist, and they will have to be built because we need them now, and will need them more urgently next year and the years to come.

There has been a rumor circulating that if the new schools are to be built, all the country schools will be closed and the pupils brought into town schools. This is absurd and no clear thinking ratepayer could possibly take this for a fact, simply because if the rumor were correct it would mean building 50 to 75 room schools in town, and the millions of dollars required to do this are far beyond the means of the ratepayers of the Olds School Division, or even the Department of Education.

The reason for building the new schools is that so many country pupils are now demanding a higher education and accommodation must be provided in the town schools, where the Department will only allow grade 12 to be taught.

If you want your children and your grandchildren to get the necessary education demanded by our society today, you will vote for the by-laws on January 31.

More About A Home For Aged In DidsburyCHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The moral and social side of A Home For the Aged has been somewhat discussed. The points mentioned would fully justify any community to take immediate action in the setting up of a project so designed. However, since all moral and social activities are tied in with financial chords, it is quite in order to deal with that phase of the pro-

The question, "Can we afford it?" is not out of order. "What will it cost?" is equally in order.

The Home For the Aged is in the same category as all other non-revenue producing projects such as church, school, organizations, Red Cross, and other enterprises. It needs attention irrespective of their remuneration side in currency. Likewise hospitals usually show a deficit at the end of a year's operation, yet we could not afford to be without them. Orphanages are built and maintained by the state who are returning a cash dividend. Red Cross, churches and schools all make their appeal from the moral side of life and it is accepted and has become organized because of definite advantages in the practical working out of the project.

The seed of hope that is well supplied to cope with what is well off-in-fact it's rich.

There are plenty of ways there is plenty of means at hand in our community. If backed by a will to handle, in a modest way, a beginning that could expand into a very comfortable home for those in need, an initial cost of $5000 for the old hospital building could be secured. There is room for fourteen or fifteen patients, modern double plumbing, equipped with stoker and electric water heating, air circulation, heating insulation, etc. A building that would cost fully three or four times that amount if built today. A garden spot in connection is an extra opportunity which we should not miss.

The revenue turn over to the town is also an important item. Approximately ten thousand dollars in furniture would be left in the form of food, clothing and fuel, etc., at the very least, whereas, if the said inmates were sent out of town they would take their money along. Therefore in reality the home would be almost self-supporting when once established.

Those of you who were fortunate enough to hear Prime Minister Manning's civil defense program announcement could not help but notice that such a home would supplement the hospital emergency facilities if needed and in no case is out of order at any time.

We have a voluntary offer of a

Has man any real existence apart from his Maker? This question will be expounded Sunday in Christian Science Churches. The Lesson-Sermon is on "Life" and is comprised of the words "Life is not mortal, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations." (Psalms 90: 11) "As mortals begin to understand Spirit, they give up the belief that there is any true existence apart from God." (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, p. 283)

FOR BLUE MORNING

An English firm is manufacturing a novel razor to put you in a cheerful mood. Not only does the razor shave you, but it whistles "Oh what a beautiful morning" and makes tea.

GOOD SEED FOR BETTER CROPS

Good seed for better crops! That's the keynote of a message from the Alberta Branch of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association. Seed is selected to insure that more than half of the grain factors determine good seed. In fact, they use grain that's so mixed with seeds and other varieties that it's entirely unsuitable for seed.

The best seed, of course, is registered seed. If you think you can't afford registered seed, you could afford to buy a good crop of grain that is good for more than 3 or 4 generations from registered.

One way to make sure your seed is of first rate quality is to sow a few bushels of registered seed on clean land and use that crop to produce pure seed for the entire farm.

You can get registered or certified seed sealed in sacks from your elevator agent, your District Agriculturist, the Alberta Seed Growers' Co-operative, or from seed houses in the larger centres. If it's just good commercial seed you desire, ask your County Agriculturist or Field Supervisor about it—but we suggest that you obtain at least one registered seed for a seed plot.

thousand dollars toward the purchase of the home, and no doubt others would fall in line to some extent. If the initial cost could be met by voluntary subscriptions, the furnishing could easily be done by the various organizations which are generous enough in that line and have done good work in supporting other needy causes outside of the district.

A few letters, or offers of donations giving practical expression of support would be much appreciated and is evidence of sincerity.

JOHN DEERE DAY

MONDAY, JANUARY 22

Dear Friends:

John Deere Day will soon be here again; in fact it will be next Monday, January 22. This is the day we look forward to having all our farmer friends here to be our guests and spend the day with us.
